USE OF THESES

This copy is supplied for purposes of private study and research only. Passages from the thesis may not be copied or closely paraphrased without the written consent of the author.
SOCIAL AND POLITICAL IDEAS OF EARLY BUDDHISM

BY

KALUKOTTEGE KUMAR PIYASIRI

THIS THESIS IS SUBMITTED FOR THE DEGREE OF

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY

IN THE AUSTRALIAN NATIONAL UNIVERSITY

OCTOBER 1977
without the loving kindness of these two friends, who always took the time to care, to listen and to be concerned. They have looked after me very carefully and their affection has been a constant moral encouragement to me. I wish to express my sincere thanks to D.T. Rajapatirana, Dr. H.H.E. Loofs, Dr. J.T.F. Jordens, Professor Q.B. Gibson and to my friends, Mr. John Pflugradt and Mrs. B. Johnstone for many acts of kindness and for valuable and constructive suggestions at every stage of the writing of this thesis. They have always enthusiastically encouraged and willingly helped me in many ways. I wish to thank the Australian National University for allowing me to carry out this research project and I am especially grateful to Mr. C.W. Plowman and Mr. G. Dicker, of the Australian National University administration for their assistance and support, not least in the final stage of preparing this thesis. I must also take this opportunity to express my sincere thanks to Professor M.B. Ariyapala for his help and co-operation on a number of difficult issues I had with the University of Sri Lanka.

Finally, I wish to express my deep gratitude to my wife Chandra, to whom I owe an enormous debt and from whom I never cease to learn.

"Knowledge" as Āryaśūra says in the Jātakamāla "is the special cause for receiving presents from persons of high rank". I have been a most fortunate recipient of favours while engaging in the pursuit of it. If the results of the search set out in this thesis give any satisfaction to the learned world, then the purpose of my quest will have been fulfilled.
CHAPTER 1: INTRODUCTION ......................................

Subsections (Numbers here denote paragraphs)

1.1.1 - 1.1.3: Introductory observations.
1.2.1 - 1.2.2: Early Buddhism was a product of social change in ancient India. 1.3.1 - 1.3.6: Criticism of the view that early Buddhism does not concern itself with social, political and legal ideas. 1.4.1 - 1.4.4: Some views suggesting that the Buddha based his system on the teaching of the Vedas.
1.5.1 - 1.5.2: Impression created in connection with early Buddhist social and political ideas and the neglect of such ideas in the context of Indian social and political thought. 1.6.1 - 1.6.5: Previous works on the subject. 1.7.1 - 1.7.6: The purpose of the present work, impression created by some modern scholars concerning Buddhist social and political thought and its modern interpretations. 1.8.1 - 1.8.6: Source materials used and the treatment of the subject. 1.9.1 - 1.9.2: Main topics discussed and the usefulness of the present work.

CHAPTER II: POLITICAL AUTHORITY AND OBLIGATION ......... 17-69

Subsections. 2.1.1: Introductory observations. 2.2.1 - 2.2.5: Classification of ideas of political obligation and authority in Indian tradition. 2.3.1 - 2.3.7: Examination of the theological theory of the Vedic tradition. The first version - monistic view. 2.4.1 - 2.4.2: A second version - divine invention. 2.5.1 - 2.5.6: The third version - magico-religious view. 2.6.1 - 2.6.6: Final version of the theological theory - idea of an agreement. 2.7.1 - 2.7.2: Summary of the theological theory. 2.8.1 - 2.8.6: Comments on the Vedic and post-Vedic ideas of the origin of kingship. 2.9.1: The early Buddhist approach to the subject. 2.10.1 - 2.10.18: The arguments against a personal creator God. 2.11.1 - 2.11.12: The notion of social contract. 2.12.1 - 2.12.3: The other versions - different schools of Buddhism and the summary. 2.13.1 - 2.13.6: Examination of the meaning of Mahāsammata - its narrow explanation. 2.14.1 - 2.14.5: Its wider explanation, its meaning and its socio-political implications. 2.15.1 - 2.15.3: Important features of the notion of social contract. 2.16.1: Conclusion.
CHAPTER III: THE LAW OF RIGHTEOUSNESS - DHAMMA

Subsections. 3.1.1: Introductory observations. 3.2.1-3.2.5: Dhamma as a word of importance in Indian religious traditions. Its derivations - developments from the days of the Vedas. The words rta, dharman and dharma. 3.3.1-3.3.8: Some observation about the assumption that the both concepts, the Vedic dharma and Buddhist dharma, are of the same nature. The Brahmanic and Upanisadic conception of dharma. Its interpretations - the sources - the various uses in different contexts. 3.4.1-3.4.9: What is dhamma of early Buddhism in contrast to the Vedic and post-Vedic systems? Some of the fundamental differences between Vedic dharma and Buddhist dhamma. 3.5.1-3.5.7: Relation of dhamma to the social contract theory of early Buddhism. 3.6.1 - 3.6.4: The authority of dhamma in the sphere of social and political life, and its explanations. 3.7.1 - 3.7.13: Principles enunciated to rule in accordance with dhamma. 3.8.1 -3.8.12: The concept of world-ruler. The spiritual and material welfare of the subjects. 3.9.1-3.9.4: Duties of the subjects. 3.10.1-3.10.7: Connection of the early Buddhist account of the world-ruler with the reign of Aśoka. Difference of opinion as to whether the idea of the world-ruler in the early Buddhist account is in some way linked with Aśoka. 3.11.1 - 3.11.8: Aśoka's policy of dhamma and its relationship with the dhamma of early Buddhism. 3.12.1 -3.12.5: Aśoka's internal and foreign policy. 3.13.1-3.13.10: The early Buddhist attitude to war. 3.14.1: Conclusion.

CHAPTER IV: ATTITUDE TO EQUALITY

Subsections. 4.1.1: Introductory observations. 4.2.1- 4.2.3: Ancient Indian social order and its origins. The conflict between the Aryans and the Dasas and Dasyus. 4.3.1 -4.3.9: The origin of the four-fold division of society (varna). The authority of the brahmanas and the reasons for their claim to superiority. 4.4.1 - 4.4.5: Preliminary observations on the idea of equality in early Buddhism. 4.5.1 -4.5.4: Man's duty in his human existence. 4.6.1 -4.6.6: The classification of the arguments used by the early Buddhists in support of their attitude to equality. The first argument—Biological. 4.7.1-4.7.8:
The second argument—Anthropological.
4.8.1-4.8.10: The third argument—Sociological. 4.9.1-4.9.3: The fourth argument—
Legal. 4.10.1-4.10.17: The fifth argument—Moral. 4.11.1-4.11.8: The sixth argument—Religious. 4.12.1-4.12.3:
Examination of some misconception regarding the spirit of egalitarianism of early Buddhism. 4.13.1: Conclusion.

CHAPTER V: ATTITUDE TO LAW ................. 186-221

Subsections. 5.1.1-5.1.2: Introductory observations. 5.2.1-5.2.4: Preliminary observations to disprove the view that there is no Buddhist law. 5.3.1-5.3.8:
The Buddhists views on the nature of justice, of law, and of punishment with a comparison of post-Vedic notions. 1:
General observations on the Vinaya laws
and their place in a context of "Law"
5.5.1-5.5.10: The formation of the Sāṅgha and its prime motive. The purpose of enacting rules and regulations and of legislation. 5.6.1-5.6.5: The codified laws of the Sāṅgha. Some interpretations of the word patimokkha.
An outline of the seven categories of pātimokkha. 5.7.1-5.7.7: The jurisdiction of the Saṅgha. 5.8.1-5.8.11:
The juridical procedure of the Saṅgha.
Discussion about some methods of conducting trials and settling legal disputes. 5.9.1-5.9.6: The democratic foundation of the Saṅgha. The conception of a welfare state. 5.10.1-5.10.2:
Final observations.

CONCLUSION ........................................ 222-224

ABBREVIATIONS .................................. 225-227

NOTES ............................................. 228-258

BIBLIOGRAPHY ................................. 259-271