

Australian
National University

Feminism for the 21st century

Thursday 13 September 6 – 7pm, followed by light refreshments

11th Annual Archives Lecture

Professor Marian Sawer The Australian National University

Coombs Lecture Theatre Fellows Road, ANU

Feminism has suffered from 'false feminist death syndrome' for almost as long as it has existed. Some believe that now with a woman Prime Minister equality has been 'done' in Australia and the time for feminism is over. In this lecture Marian Sawer will examine some of the media representations of feminism over the past century and the rather different story that can be found in the archives. This is a story of feminist persistence in pursuit of goals still far from achieved.

Emeritus Professor Marian Sawer (AO, FASSA) is an Adjunct Professor in the School of Political Science and International Relations in the ANU College of Arts and Social Sciences and the former head of the Political Science Program in the ANU Research School of Social Sciences. She has researched and published widely in the fields of democratic theory and practice, electoral administration and gender politics, and has just stepped down as Vice-President of the International Political Science Association.

Presented by

ANU Archives &
The Friends of the Noel
Butlin Archives Centre

Enquiries

W anu.edu.au/publiclectures
E butlin.archives@anu.edu.au T 02 6125 2219
This lecture is free and open to the public
ANU Public Lecture Series information:
anu.edu.au/publiclectures

CRICOS# 00100C

PUBLIC LECTURE