Reviving Lakes and Wetlands: Lessons Learned from the People's Republic of China

Lakes and wetlands in the People's Republic of China face serious threats, yet the restoration programs designed to save them have achieved little success over the last 20 years. Today, more than ever, these resources need to be better managed and protected.

The experience of three lake restoration programs highlights the need for an integrated strategy that takes on the complex challenges of rehabilitating water and land resources, while strengthening the links among stakeholders. The key elements for success are strong and consistent political leadership, integrated planning and analysis, and effective management structures and financial engineering.

Consulting Opportunities with ADB

Each year, ADB employs more than 1,000 consultants to carry out technical assistance activities and other operations. Any individual consultant or consulting firm/organization from a member country of ADB can pursue these opportunities. It pays, however, to be well informed. Where does one learn of upcoming loan or technical assistance activities? Why is an expression of interest important? What should a proposal include?

Consulting Opportunities with ADB provides an overview of the selection and recruitment of consulting firms and individual consultants. The information contained in this video is vital for consultants who wish to avail of consulting opportunities offered by ADB.

Saving Cambodia's Great Lake

The Tonle Sap is among the most productive freshwater fisheries in the world. The Cambodian people depend on the lake's resources, but how long can these last? The Tonle Sap has become an environmental hotspot. Fish stocks are threatened by cutting of the flooded forest, overexploitation, and illegal fishing practices. Growing pollution and erosion of soil from the watershed are accelerating the lake's demise.

Competition Policy and Development in Asia

This book looks at the experiences of six Asian countries in developing and implementing domestic competition policy. It analyzes how the choice of development policies impacts on the state of competition in each country and how competition contributes to development. The considerable variation in policies and experiences across the countries provides a rich source of information from which lessons and best practices can be drawn.

From the Ground Up

ADB finances numerous projects with participatory components that involve beneficiaries and intermediary bodies, such as nongovernment organizations. The publication takes the reader on a journey across the Asia and Pacific region, from Tajikistan to Papua New Guinea, visiting eight ADB-backed projects along the way. Each chapter brings to life personal stories of those who have been given the opportunity to improve their economic and social situation, and the condition of the world around them. The challenges they have confronted, and the ways in which they have struggled to achieve their dreams, are colorfully described in this inspiring collection of case studies of people-oriented development at the grassroots level.

Labor Markets in Asia: Issues and Perspectives

Unemployment and underemployment are developing Asia's most important problems. On conservative estimates, the region is home to about 500 million workers who are either unemployed or underemployed. Therefore, helping people as workers is critical for poverty reduction. Country-specific studies for the People's Republic of China, India, Indonesia, Philippines, and Viet Nam undermine the case for across-the-board labor market reforms. Instead, the authors advocate well-designed, country-specific piecemeal reforms that target the particular policies which may inhibit employment creation.

Poverty, Growth, and Institutions in Developing Asia

The theme of this book is that economic growth is the key, but institutions and other national and subnational attributes matter as well. They are critical to explaining differences in social development and poverty reduction across countries and subnational areas that cannot be accounted for by growth alone. The book concludes that a more complete strategy needs to consider various institutional factors at the national and subnational levels to achieve rapid and sustained poverty reduction. Indeed, paying attention to these factors will benefit both growth and poverty reduction.

Poverty Impact Analysis: Selected Tools and Applications

The book highlights three critical areas in poverty impact analysis: identifying the poor at the household level, over a specific geographical area, and for poverty impact analysis in the economy-wide context. A supplementary feature of the book includes applications of some tools that have been made user friendly to appeal for a wider use and to ease the scaling up—should more countries be included in the systems.

Poverty in the Philippines: Income, Assets, and Access

This publication examines official income poverty statistics and trends, but takes a multidimensional approach in exploring questions of access. The report looks at access by the poor to five important assets: human, physical, natural, social, and financial capital. The report identifies seven broad causes of poverty: macroeconomic problems, employment issues; rapid population growth; low agricultural productivity; governance concerns, including corruption; armed conflict; and physical disability.

Reducing Poverty in Asia: Emerging Issues in Growth, Targeting, and Measurement

In this book, a group of distinguished authors addresses three broad questions: (i) what broad strategies and macroeconomic policies best support poverty reduction efforts in Asia; (ii) what role should targeted antipoverty interventions play, and how should such interventions be designed; and (iii) how is poverty measured, what new approaches are needed, and how does measurement affect our understanding of poverty. These broad themes are considered together in separate chapters examining the poverty situations in a number of countries in Asia and the Pacific.

REGIONAL COOPERATION AND INTEGRATION

Asian Economic Cooperation and Integration Progress, Prospects, Challenges

This collection of studies was based on presentations at the High-Level Conference on Asia's Economic Cooperation and Integration held in July 2004 as part of an ADB regional technical assistance. Over the past decade in Asia, a growing awareness of the interdependence among countries in the region and of the importance of regional cooperation in managing the challenges of globalization has led to important steps to enhance regional economic cooperation initiatives. Relatively slow progress with multilateral initiatives and the proliferation of regional blocs in other parts of the world have provided additional impetus to greater cooperation in Asia. There is a realization that open regionalism can contribute substantially to enhanced productivity and economic growth, and to poverty reduction, within the region.

Emerging Asian Regionalism: A Partnership for Shared Prosperity

As Asia grows and prospers, its economies become increasingly vital to each other—and to the world. As markets interconnect the region, Asian governments need to work together more closely to sustain economic development, grasp common opportunities, and manage shared risks and problems. The key message of the study is that, in an increasingly globalized world, Asian regionalism entails a partnership for regionally and globally shared prosperity.

A Shared Vision: Strategic Development Outline for Economic Cooperation between the People's Republic of China and Mongolia in the Project Area

The People's Republic of China (PRC) and Mongolia share a common border of about 4,600 kilometers. In 2000, both countries expressed strong interest in exploring possibilities for economic cooperation, particularly as a means of fostering economic development in remote border areas. ADB provided technical assistance that helped formulate a strategic development outline for promoting economic cooperation, particularly in the area covering the three provinces in eastern Mongolia and the Xingnanmeng Prefecture in the eastern part of Inner Mongolia Autonomous Region, PRC.

Converting Migration Drains into Gains: Harnessing the Resources of Overseas Professionals

Developing country governments and international funding agencies are taking notice of diasporas' potential contribution to economic development. Attention has primarily focused on the impressive totals of economic remittances, whose global estimates now outpace official development assistance. More systematic research is required on diaspora contributions and strategic policies and programs to support them. This volume seeks to contribute to this research agenda by analytically reviewing three case studies of diaspora knowledge exchange/transfer: Afghanistan, People's Republic of China, and Philippines.

My Mekong

100 kids + 200 cameras = more than 5,000 photographs from five countries.

The formula behind My Mekong is simple. The result is a complex tapestry of colors, textures, faces, and images depicting the realities of people across the Mekong region. At the core of the Mekong region are the 320 million people who share a common culture and history, are nourished by the same great river, and are more connected than ever before. While some traditional lifestyles and customs are centuries old and scarcely altered by time, many people's lives are changing as the region opens up and the meaning of community expands beyond borders. In My Mekong, we journey into the heart of that community, as seen through the eyes of its young people.

Social Protection Index for Committed Poverty Reduction Volume 2: Asia

Social protection is getting more attention around the world. Recognition is growing that the Millennium Development Goals for poverty reduction, as well as equitable and sustainable growth, cannot be achieved purely through the promotion of economic growth and the development of physical and social infrastructure.

The most important outcome of this study was the construction of an internationally comparable index that provides a realistic and acceptable summary of the overall level of social protection activities in a country.

The book gives an overview of the key results of the study, which covered 31 countries in Asia. It gives a unique impression of the reality of social protection in Asia.

Societal Status of Women in Indonesia, Malaysia, Philippines, and Thailand

Are laws the answer to achieving gender equality? What are the complex interactions of civil, religious, and customary laws that shape women's status? What are the ways in which laws reflect and reinforce social and cultural norms and expectations? Will the enactment of laws to protect and promote the rights of women result in improving the status of women in Asia? This publication provides a discussion of these complex issues and offers some answers to these questions.

Water Voices Documentary Series Breaking Barriers: Clean Water for Dhaka's Slums

Dhaka is the fastest-growing megacity in Asia, with a population expected to reach 16 million by 2010. More than 3 million poor people live in squalid slums. Most are considered squatters who have no access to city water or sanitation services. One solution gaining momentum is for poor communities to manage communal water points themselves, with assistance from a local nongovernment organization.

The Connection

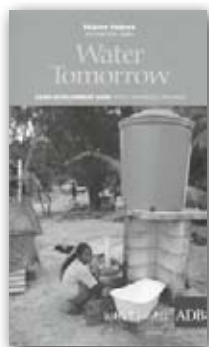

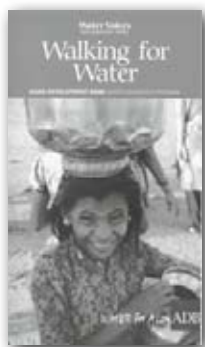

Long years of war and civil strife left Phnom Penh's water supply system in ruins. An estimated 70% of the city's water was lost through the decrepit distribution systems and illegal connections. Led by its dynamic director, Ek Sonn Chan, the Phnom Penh Water Supply Authority has overcome these challenges to become one of Asia's most effective water utilities, as it advances toward the goal of providing water for all the city's residents.

Hidden Paradise (Tinagong Paraiso)

To the eye, Hidden Paradise in the city of Bacolod, Philippines, is starkly different from other neighborhoods nearby. It is a community of former squatters with tidy homes and clean, dry streets; a safe drinking water supply; and healthy children. Community leaders reveal how they transformed a slum into a hidden paradise.

Upstream Downstream

There is conflict over water use between upstream and downstream communities on the Ping River in northern Thailand. How can the competing demands for water be balanced? The Ping River Basin Committee brings all stakeholders together to seek common ground on sharing and protecting this vital river system.

Waibulabula: Living Waters

Development over the years has caused critical damage to the reef and degraded village water sources on the Coral Coast in the Fiji Islands. Now coastal communities, a local nongovernment organization, and a tourist resort are working together to save the reef, and protect and manage water resources.

Walking for Water

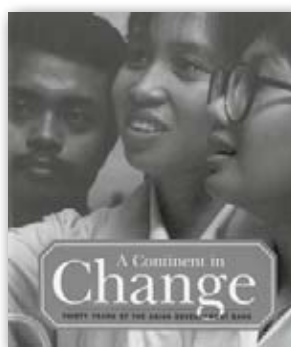

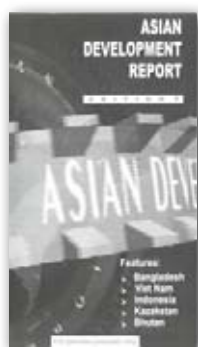

During a 3-year drought, women from the rural areas in the state of Gujarat, India, were spending at least 3 hours every day fetching water from a steadily diminishing source. Now, women are managing village water systems, and bringing water closer to home. They use the extra time to earn a living through a handicraft cooperative.

Water Tomorrow

The small island countries of Kiribati and Tonga in the Pacific rely mainly on fragile groundwater aquifers for freshwater. But groundwater sources just below the surface are highly vulnerable to pollution and saltwater intrusion, as populations grow and concentrate in urban areas. Community organizers, like Haouli Vi, are working to change peoples' behavior to safeguard water supplies and the environment.

AGRICULTURE AND RURAL DEVELOPMENT

A Study of Rural Asia: Beyond the Green Revolution An Overview

An economic transformation has occurred in much of rural Asia during the last two decades. Large parts of the region have made remarkable progress with substantial gains in food security, per capita income, quality of life, and poverty reduction. Yet, rural Asia remains home to 700 million people living in poverty, many of whom have no access to safe water and sanitation. To explore new opportunities and challenges facing rural society in Asia, a study of rural Asia was undertaken by ADB. The main results and recommendations contained in the five volumes have been included in the overview and should prove useful to those concerned with improving the economic and social conditions of rural populations in Asia through sustainable development.

Digital Dividends

Despite explosive growth of information and communication technology, only 5% of humanity reaps the benefits and opportunities of the digital revolution. In developing countries, less than 2% of the people have access to the internet, compared with 30% in developed countries. The world's poor—including 400 million impoverished children living in Asia and the Pacific—remain information have-nots. Education and access to information are the best means to enable young people to escape poverty. Digital Dividends looks at pioneering initiatives in Bangladesh, Cambodia, and India to spread the benefits of information and communication technology to poor children.

POVERTY

Poverty in Asia: The Challenge Ahead

Asia is home to two thirds of the world's poor—nearly a billion people surviving on less than a dollar a day. For ADB, fighting poverty is the region's biggest development challenge. In a major policy shift announced in November 1999, ADB is concentrating all its resources on lifting the region out of poverty. This short video looks at the plight of Asia's poor and introduces ADB's Poverty Reduction Strategy.

PRIVATE SECTOR

Developing Best Practices for Promoting Private Sector Investment in Infrastructure

This five-volume set presents the findings of the ADB regional technical assistance study, which developed sector-specific best practices for promoting private sector participation in key infrastructure sectors in ADB's developing member countries. The best practices cover the role of government, institutional reform, strategic planning, legal and regulatory frameworks, unbundling and competition, contractual arrangements, sources of financing, and allocation of risk. Each volume is divided into two parts.

Volume I: Power

This volume examines the optimum approaches for achieving benefits for consumers of electricity through power sector restructuring, unbundling, the introduction of competition, and privatization.

Children of Asia

Throughout Asia and the Pacific, more than 400 million children live in extreme poverty. Denied their rights, they are vulnerable to disease, armed conflict, and exploitation. For a fortunate few, however, the future appears brighter. In this series of four stories, we meet children of Asia who are making a difference:

- Fragile Promise. Child laborers in southern India form a union to defend their rights
- Turning Grief into Courage. A teenage girl in northern Thailand copes with becoming an AIDS orphan
- Lessons from Life. Children in Timor-Leste learn to overcome the trauma of armed conflict
- Digital Dividends. Poor children in Bangladesh, Cambodia, and India benefit from information and communication technology

Credit Where It's Due: Empowering Women in Nepal

Although women bear the brunt of farming and household chores in Nepal, they have very little access to real property, savings, and credit.

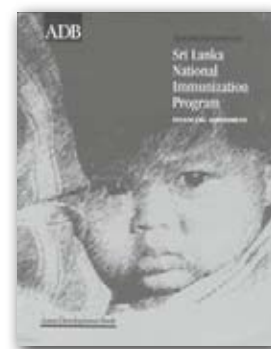

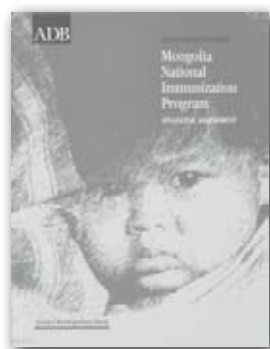

But now, in villages throughout the country, women are beginning to improve their lot with the help of microcredit projects that encourage cash savings and provide livelihood skills training and credit. Credit Where It's Due illustrates how three rural Nepali women have taken control of their lives through microenterprise projects. Aside from economic and financial benefits, the women are experiencing a new sense of unity and power.

Resettlement: Improving the Lives of People Affected by Projects

Development projects are designed to improve the lives of most people they affect. However, some projects will have a negative impact on some people—displacing their homes and/or communities, taking land, requiring them to change their profession. Such people must be assisted to a better quality of life than they had prior to the project; at worst, they must be helped to regain their previous quality of life. Resettlement explains ADB's policy for assisting such people, and what assistance they, their organizations, and their governments can expect from ADB projects.

URBAN DEVELOPMENT

Asian Cities in the 21st Century: Contemporary Approaches to Municipal Management

Municipal managers in developing Asia are faced with the formidable challenge of finding ways of dealing with rapid urbanization, growing demand for better public services, and declining financial support from central governments. Since economic activity and wealth are largely generated in the cities, the resources needed for meeting these challenges are available, but tapping the resources requires a significant improvement in the management of the cities. Some Asian cities are successfully meeting these challenges, and local leaders learn best from each other. Therefore, ADB organized a number of workshops for local government officials to share their experiences and learn from the success stories.

Volume 1: Leadership and Change in City Management

This volume summarizes the proceedings of a forum at the ADB Institute in Tokyo, Japan, where 31 officials from 14 Asian cities discussed issues and techniques relating to leadership, corporate and business plans, human resource management, and customer focus.

ISBN: 971-561-210-5; Publication Stock No. 020499; Year Published: 1999;

Volume 3: Reforming Dhaka City Management

This volume is a collection of papers presented at a workshop in Dhaka, Bangladesh, which discussed issues relating to institutional arrangements, and financial and solid waste management in Dhaka, and examples from Calcutta and Surat, India, of improvements through effective municipal management.

ISBN: 971-561-212-1; Publication Stock No. 020399; Year Published: 1999;
Publisher: ADB; Price: $25 (paperback); No. of Pages: 89; PDF file: available

Volume 4: Partnership for Better Municipal Management

This volume represents the experiences of municipal leaders from a number of Asian cities and representatives of development agencies in improving governance and delivery of municipal services, particularly through partnerships with the private sector and nongovernment organizations. It is also a summary of the proceedings of the Asian Mayors' Forum held in Colombo, Sri Lanka, in June 1999.

Volume 5: Fighting Urban Poverty

This volume, published by the ADB Institute and ADB, contains the views, experiences, and plans of Asian municipal leaders in tackling the high incidence of poverty among their citizens through five critical interventions: creating jobs for the poor, building partnerships for reducing poverty, working together to improve slums, expanding housing for the poor, and getting rid of urban waste.

ISBN: 971-561-317-9; Publication Stock No. 100200; Year Published: 2001;

Cities Under Siege

By 2000, 23 cities in the world will have a population of more than 10 million people. Eighteen of these megacities will be in the developing world. What will it take to manage these cities? What are the challenges that face urban planners? What are the solutions? Cities Under Siege explores these questions by profiling urban management efforts in Bangkok, Manila, and New Delhi.

Improving Slum Life: Urban Poverty in Bangladesh

When the harvest is over, millions of Bangladesh's landless agricultural laborers face unemployment and hunger. The solution for many is to migrate to the cities in search of work. Massive urban migration leads to a proliferation of slums with the attendant problems of congestion, unsanitary conditions, and disease. This video looks at a slum improvement project in Dinajpur, which improves social and physical infrastructure and provides skills training.

Towards Effective Water Policy in the Asian and Pacific Region

Volume One: Overview of Issues and Recommendations

This book looks at issues concerning what has become the critical natural resource for many countries of Asia and the Pacific, and recommends principles and strategies for developing an effective water policy. It summarizes the results of the Regional Consultation Workshop on Water Policy organized by ADB.

ISBN: 971-561-092-7; Publication Stock No. 010796; Editors: Wouter Lincklaen Arriens, Jeremy Bird, Jeremy Berkoff, and Paul Mosley; Year Published: 1996; Publisher: ADB; Price: $25 (paperback); No. of Pages: 328 + xiii

Volume Two: Country Papers

This volume presents the situations and perspectives in 23 developing member countries of ADB, as well as two more developed countries—France and the Republic of Korea that have addressed many critical issues in the water sector. An appendix features the first sample National Water Sector Profile of Sri Lanka.

ISBN: 971-561-093-5; Publication Stock No. 010796; Editors: Wouter Lincklaen Arriens, Jeremy Bird, Jeremy Berkoff, and Paul Mosley; Year Published: 1996; Publisher: ADB; Price: $15 (paperback); No. of Pages: 311

Volume Three: Theme Papers and Comments

This volume presents the keynote papers presented at the Regional Consultation Workshop. The papers focus on the four workshop themes: the country institutional context, the basin management context, the urbanization context, and the economic and financial contexts.

Viet Nam's Water Paradox

Each year, typhoons bring devastating floods to Viet Nam's countryside, exacting a heavy toll on human lives and crops. In contrast, Viet Nam's cities suffer from a chronic thirst for water because of an antiquated and dilapidated distribution system. This video shows how development projects aim to resolve this water paradox.

ADB DEPOSITORY LIBRARY PROGRAM

Increasing public interest in its activities and the need for wider dissemination of information prompted ADB to launch the ADB Depository Library Program in January 1994. Under the program, member libraries agree to make available ADB publications and documents to library users, including its academic, professional, and other constituencies, such as nongovernment organizations. The following publications are provided: books, selected country and economic studies, technical papers, annual reports, statistical publications, documents on loan and technical assistance projects, environmental impact assessments, and public information materials. Member libraries make these accessible to the public during business hours. Deposited items are also made available through interlibrary loans. Following is a list of the member libraries as of February 2008. For the most updated list, see our website at www.adb.org/Publications/Depositories.

About the Asian Development Bank

ADB's vision is an Asia and Pacific region free of poverty. Its mission is to help its developing member countries substantially reduce poverty and improve the quality of life of their people. Despite the region's many successes, it remains home to two thirds of the world's poor. Nearly 1.7 billion people in the region live on $2 or less a day. ADB is committed to reducing poverty through inclusive economic growth, environmentally sustainable growth, and regional integration.

Based in Manila, ADB is owned by 67 members, including 48 from the region. Its main instruments for helping its developing member countries are policy dialogue, loans, equity investments, guarantees, grants, and technical assistance. In 2007, it approved $10.1 billion of loans, $673 million of grant projects, and technical assistance amounting to $243 million.
