

From: Jim Davis
To: Bea Hogan
Date: 12/12/2011 11:19 AM
Subject: Re: Publications

Dear Bea,

Your sentence was very well constructed, and I understand completely what you intended to say.

In response, I can assure you that, although the cover of the volume may indicate that it was published in 2010, it was actually published this year - the Christchurch earthquake caused delays to everything in Christchurch, including publishing the Canterbury Law Review. The Law Faculty have been operating out of marquees since the earthquake, and Elizabeth Twomey, the editor, did most of the work for this edition from home - as her home was scarcely damaged at all.

Hope that helps,

Jim

>>>

From: Bea Hogan
To: Jim Davis
Date: 12/12/11 11:01
Subject: Re: Publications

Dear Jim

On scanning the article I realised that the journal was published in 2010. So it probably won't be counted for 2011 unless I can include a note on the record which may point to a delay in printing having occurred? Sorry, that was probably a very badly constructed sentence!

Kind regards

Bea

>>> Jim Davis 9/12/2011 12:36 PM >>>
Dear Bea,

Done.

Kind regards,
Jim

>>>

From: Bea Hogan
To: Jim Davis
Date: 9/12/11 10:40
Subject: Re: Publications

Dear Jim

Would you please be able to put it in the CReST pigeon hole in the reading room? I can then scan it and pop it back into your pigeon hole when I'm finished.