SAMPLING PROCEDURES

Australian sample : area-cluster sample with sex quota

The Australian survey was conducted in cooperation with the Roy Morgan Research Centre Pty Ltd.

The Australian sample was designed to produce a representative cross-section sample of Australian adults. Using the entire Australian electoral roll as the sampling frame, 110 dwellings were selected at random. Interviewers were then instructed to commence interviewing at the dwelling adjacent to, and at the right of, the random start (i.e. one of the 110 dwellings randomly selected) and to interview one individual there and, moving in a clockwise fashion around the block, in each adjacent dwelling until a cluster of 10 individuals was interviewed.

No information is available on sampling procedures used in countries other than Australia.

- [3] An expanded version of the variable name, or variable label (40 character maximum).
- [4] The starting column location of this variable within the record.
- [5] Indicates the width and character type of the variable within the record. The character type is either alphanumeric or numeric. The format element indicating an alphanumeric variable takes the form Aw, where w is the column width of the variable. The element indicating that a variable is numeric is Fw.d, where w indicates the column width of the variable (including the sign and decimal point if punched), and d is the number of digits and columns to the right of the decimal point.

- [11] The relative frequency (percentage) of occurrence of each code value in the data file.
- [12] The code values occurring in the data for this variable.
- [13] The textual definitions of the codes, or value labels.

Note 1.

The variable name, variable label, value labels and missing values are reproduced in the SPSS set-up file which is distributed with the data file.

Note 2.

Items [10], [11], [12] and [13] above may not be provided for all variables, for example, where there are variables with unlabelled values, or where the number of values for a variable is too large to incorporate comfortably into the codebook. Frequencies and codes for these variables appear in a frequencies addendum.
