

ASA ORAL HISTORIES

An oral history program was established by the ASA in the early 1990's to interview founding members of the archival profession in Australia and those who have played a leading role in the work of the ASA. It was suspended in early 2007. In undertaking this program the Society worked with a number of oral history units in various Australian research libraries to conduct the interviews, and preserve and provide access to the transcripts and tapes. The primary collaborative relationship was with the National Library of Australia.

The following list details the names of those interviewed, who conducted the interview, the date, and the location and bibliographic reference for the tapes and transcripts.
