

Stephen Padgham and Greg 'Charlie' Dickens were students at ANU in the late 1960s and early 1970s. In this interview they talk about the significance of the Union Building (Pauline Griffin Building) as a place for student activities, politics, activism, the office of the student newspaper 'Woroni' and the office of the Administrative Secretary of the ANU Students Association, Diana Riddell.