Classified List of Industries.....	27

INTRODUCTION.

The working population may be classified in two ways, according to two distinct concepts—

- (1) The occupation, which is personal to the individual;
- (2) The industry in which the individual carries on his occupation.

The distinction between the terms "industry" and "occupation" is not always sufficiently appreciated and frequently the terms are used as if they were interchangeable. It is desirable, therefore, to define the sense in which these terms are used.

Occupation. The occupation of a person is the kind of work that he or she personally performs. The nature of the factory, business or service in which a person works has no direct bearing upon the classification of his occupation.

Industry is defined as any single branch of productive activity, trade or service. All persons engaged in any such branch of economic activity are classified industrially as belonging to the particular branch in question irrespective of their personal occupations within the industry.

Thus a single firm may employ individuals performing completely different occupations in order to make a particular product or to render a particular service, but the industrial classification of each of these individuals is determined by the nature of the product made or the service rendered by the firm which employs him.

This volume deals with only one of these methods of classifying the working population, namely the classification by industry.

Each person is assigned to an industry category according to the nature of the business of the establishment in which he works. The establishment is the individual factory, mine, farm, store, commercial office, &c. Establishments similar in nature are classified to the same industrial category whether operated by a government authority, corporation or individual.

Activities which are ancillary to the main business may be carried on by an establishment, either at the same site or elsewhere. For example, a garage operated by a retail store for the purpose of servicing its vehicles, a foundry section attached to a refrigerator factory or a power plant serving a mine. Such ancillary activities are regarded as part of the establishment and classified accordingly.

An establishment may be generally defined as a single physical location where industrial activities are performed. If, however, a single physical location comprises two or more branches which are engaged in distinct and separate activities for which different industry classifications are provided, then each branch, in so far as practicable, is treated as a separate establishment. Where two such branches are combined in a single unit which cannot be split, for example, a clay pit combined with a brick works, the whole unit is classified according to the final product.

An establishment operating as a single unit but producing more than one product or rendering more than one type of service is classified according to the principal product produced or service rendered.

The Classification and Classified List of Industries are designed primarily for use in classifying returns obtained from the Censuses of the Commonwealth of Australia and should be used in conjunction with the companion volume, Index of Industries.

The Classification and Index are revised and brought up to date for each Census. This revision, for use in the 1961 Census, has been made in accordance with the experience gained during the 1954 Census and from information gained from various other sources since that time.

The Classification divides the whole field of industry into fifteen major industry groups, which, in turn, are divided into 57 sub-groups and 338 categories. Each category defines a branch of productive activity, trade or service.

In the Classified List the categories are shown in the same order as in the Classification. The individual industry descriptions which comprise each category are arranged in alphabetical order under the category title. The component descriptions define the category.

The category "Other" is used—

- (a) When the industry description is quite definite but no other appropriate category is provided to which it can be assigned. In such cases, the description is assigned to the "Other" category for the group or sub-group to which it most closely corresponds.
- (b) When the industry description is not precise enough to enable it to be assigned to any other category within a particular sub-group, but is defined sufficiently to allocate it to that sub-group.

Introduction—continued.

Certain industry descriptions appearing in the Classified List are followed by a qualification—in brackets—most of which are self-explanatory. The qualifications shown below are used in the same indicated.

"(n.e.i.)"—Not elsewhere included.

"(undefined)"—A reported industry description is not to be coded to the number appearing opposite an entry in the Index qualified by "(undefined)" if there is any evidence, either in the reported description itself or elsewhere on the Schedule, that will enable the description to be coded to another Index entry. For example, the reported description "Metal furniture making" must not be coded to the Index entry "36—Furniture making (undefined)" but to the entry "147—Furniture making, Metal".

"(so described)"—Where an Index entry is qualified in this manner, only reported descriptions with precisely the same or synonymous wording may be coded to the number appearing opposite the entry. For example, the reported description "Fruit-growing and poultry farming" must not be coded to the Index entry "020 Mixed farming (so described)".

"(no industry stated)"—Entries so qualified refer to cases where no reply has been given to the "Industry" or "Place of Work" question but the occupation reported is such that it can be reasonably assigned to an industry category.
