

ON^{& OFF}CAMPUS

Message from Professor Ian Anderson AO, Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Student and University Experience)

As some of us prepare to return to campus to resume some resemblance of normal, I would like to start this message by acknowledging the work of the many staff who have remained on campus for the past few months to keep the buildings secure, our computers running well, processing our pays each fortnight and supporting the residential students for whom campus is home (among other things!). I'm sure they've been enjoying the peace and quiet to some degree, but are also looking forward to seeing some more friendly faces around the place. Thank you for all your work during these unprecedented times.

You will have seen the Vice-Chancellor's blog last Friday about the graduated return to campus, and I know many of you have seen the stages of return on the website. Today's edition of On&OffCampus provides more of the operational and day to day information you will need for a safe return to campus. This information for returning to campus will guide and inform decisions about local areas, which will be made by Deans, Portfolio heads, School and Service Division Directors. These staff will be communicating directly with you on their decisions and when it is safe for you to return.

VC's community forums – 26 and 28 May

The Vice-Chancellor and members of the University Executive will be holding virtual community forums next week to answer your questions about the University, the scheduled return to campus and provide feedback on anything that may be impacting you.

Please bring along any questions you have. If you are unable to attend, please send your questions to vc.events@anu.edu.au.

Wellbeing and Remote Education surveys

Help ANU plan the path beyond COVID-19.

SWiRL, WHiRRL and TWiRL surveys are now open, and will close on Friday 5 June.

Sport, gyms and the pool

The pool will be reopening this Saturday 23 May, as will all outdoor ovals, tennis courts, the boat shed and the sailing boat shed.

Users of these facilities must follow strict COVID-19 social distancing and hygiene guidelines.

Indoor gyms on campus will remain closed.
