

Another Notice

about the number of essays to be written on the set books

Whereas the poetry will not be taught this year,

Whereas the original design of the programme of set books, essays & exam questions enabled you to avoid writing on one of the five texts,

Whereas some of you probably need to write more essays than others, it is proposed that the three essays stipulated in the assessment scheme be reduced to two and that the number of marks allotted to these two essays be reduced in the same proportion.

James Grieve
19 August 1996

PS I remind you that the revised date for the essay on Les belles images is now

Friday 30th August

and that the first class on Raymond Radiguet's

Le diable au corps will be held on Friday 30th August.