

When it's time to talk...

Talking with someone from the Queensland AIDS Council isn't a scary experience. You'll soon find that we can help you in many ways. Whether you could use some practical help at home, or would just like to know more about HIV/AIDS and living with it on a day to day basis; the AIDS Council is a group of friendly and caring people willing to provide assistance when and where you need it. To find out more about the Council, just contact your nearest office.
